

When competition for jobs increases

Youths turn to apprenticeship programs

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

As the competition for jobs increases, young would-be workers are finding that apprenticeship programs can give them the edge they need in the search for employment.

The programs usually involve from two to five years of on-the-job training along with some formal classroom training. The apprenticeships are not easy to come by. There are more applicants than there are openings in almost every area.

Unions, high school guidance counselors, vocational schools, trade associations and regional state and federal employment offices are good sources of information for specific requirements and information on how to apply.

Finding out which occupations offer apprenticeship opportunities can be tricky. To help steer young people on the right road, the Labor Department has prepared a list of jobs for which apprenticeships are available and has assessed the employment outlook in each field.

Here is a rundown of some job areas in which employment is expected to grow faster than average from now through 1985 and for which you can train in an apprenticeship program:

LITHOGRAPHIC WORKERS: Job opportunities will grow due to the increased use of offset presses in place of letter presses. The best chances are for those with some post-high school training in printing technology. Apprenticeship programs usually last four or five years.

BOILERMAKING: Construction of new electric power plants and the expansion of industries, such as steel and petroleum, which use boilers are expected to boost employment. Apprenticeship lasts four years.

OPHTHALMIC LABORATORY TECHNICIANS: The rising demand for eyeglasses will help job hunters. Training may be through apprenticeship program, vocational school or on-the-job. Some states require licenses.

COOKS AND CHEFS: Most starting jobs are in small restaurants and other eating places with simple food preparation. Skills can be learned on the job, but cooking courses are an advantage and there are some apprenticeships available in large operations.

ASBESTOS AND INSULATION WORKERS: Increased construction and the need for energy conservation will boost employment. Most opportunities will be in metropolitan areas. Four-year apprenticeship program, with examination on completion. Applicants generally must be at least 18.

CEMENT MASONS, CONSTRUCTION ELECTRICIANS, GLAZIERS: Increased construction activity is expected to help would-be workers. Applicants for apprenticeship programs generally must be at least 19. A three-year apprenticeship is recommended for cement masons; a four-year program for electricians and glaziers.

PLUMBERS AND PIPEFITTERS: Jobs will be available due to construction in areas such as chemical and petroleum refineries and nuclear power plants which use pipework. Applicants should be at least 16; an apprenticeship, including at least 144 hours of classroom training, lasts five years.

ROOFERS: Increased construction, repairs and water-proofing will create job opportunities. Applicants should be at least 18, with a high school diploma or its equivalent. Apprenticeship program is three years, with a minimum of 1,400 hours of training and 144 hours of classroom instruction in subjects like blueprint reading, mathematics and safety.

INSTRUMENT REPAIRERS: The anticipated increased use of instruments for energy conservation, air and water pollution monitoring, medical diagnosis, etc., will provide jobs. Apprenticeships last four years. Training also is available at technical institutes and junior colleges or at Armed Forces technical schools. High school courses in math and science, including electronics, are particularly useful.

DRAFTERS: The growing number of scientists and engineers also will need support personnel such as drafters. Increasingly complex design problems also will create jobs. The best opportunities will be for those with associate degrees in drafting from junior colleges, technical institutes or vocational schools, but apprenticeship programs of three or four years also are available.

Further information is available in the Labor Department publication, "Jobs for Which Apprenticeships are Available," and a companion guide, "Jobs Requiring Junior College or Technical Training." There is no charge for either booklet; both are available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

BEGINNING A BACKFIRE

Carter plans to meet Arab, Israel foreign ministers next month

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will meet with the foreign ministers of Israel and at least four Arab nations next month to build on what the administration calls "continuing momentum" toward a Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

These meetings and what the President concedes are "major differences between Arabs and Israelis" were likely to be topics for discussion at lunch today between Carter and former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Another probable item for discussion was the new Panama Canal agreement, which Carter and Kissinger have talked about on the telephone within the past week. The President would like support for Senate ratification from the former secretary, whom he criticized during last year's presidential campaign for being a "lone ranger" in foreign policy.

The pact faces stiff opposition. Acknowledging that the agreement "is a tough political question," Carter wrote to all members of Congress on Friday for the second time in a week saying: "I need your help." The White House made his letter public on Saturday.

At the September talks on the Middle East, the foreign minister of Lebanon might join his counterparts from Syria, Jordan, Egypt and Saudi

Ontario girl, 5, drowns at Puddingstone Reservoir

The 5-year-old daughter of an Ontario couple was drowned in Puddingstone Reservoir at San Dimas Sunday afternoon.

Park patrol personnel found the body of Annaliza Marie Ramirez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Ramirez, 1879 Inverness Court, Ontario, in four to five feet of water in a restricted no swimming area west of a floating dock ramp.

The victim's mother reported that little Annaliza had been seen last playing in a swim area next to the ramp.

She had been missing an hour when

The drowning is the second this summer in an area where swimming is forbidden.

A Los Angeles woman was fatally injured July 27 when she was run over by a water ski boat.

She was swimming in an area used by boaters to return water skiers to shore. In that incident, the boat went out of control and struck the victim, who died later at the San Dimas Community Hospital.

They all moved over for this Sunday 'driver'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California drivers are notorious for not letting others cut into their lanes, but when the other "driver" is piloting a small plane, it's a different story.

California Highway Patrol Officer Jerry Henness said the bizarre incident happened at 3:25 p.m. Sunday when a Cessna 150 owned and piloted by Raymond A. Etchepare, 32, of West Los Angeles, suddenly snatched its throttle linkage, while on a recreational outing.

Etchepare managed to land the small, single engine aircraft on the busy San Diego Freeway, just south of Santa Monica Boulevard, without injury to himself, his passenger, Ray Leger, 32, of Los Angeles, or surprised motorists, who quickly made room for the unusual visitor from the sky.

"It was just like it was planned," Henness said. "The traffic just slowed down and let him land."

A CHP patrol unit in the vicinity was on the scene in about 30 seconds according to Henness, to direct traffic around the stricken plane.

After repairing the damage and undergoing a quick safety check by Federal Aviation Administration investigator Bernard Porter, Etchepare climbed aboard, opened the throttle all the way and taxied down the freeway, before taking off over the startled heads of motorists heading home.

TV marked by racial, sexual discrimination?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission said today television is marked by racial and sexual stereotyping and that the Federal Communications Commission appears unwilling to push hard to end such discrimination.

The commission said the FCC appears "willing to accept little more than a paper commitment" by the television industry to end such discrimination.

"In doing so it has thereby demonstrated its unwillingness to live up to the promise of its original call to the 'conscience' of the nation's broadcasting media and its own mandate to encourage the broader and more effective use of radio and television," the report said.

The FCC also was urged to conduct a public inquiry and proposed rulemaking on the problem, as suggested by former Commissioner Benjamin L. Hooks before he left the FCC to head the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The 181-page report titled "Window Dressing on the Set" evaluates network dramatic programming broadcast from 1969 through 1974, news programs broadcast in 1974-75 and employment data for 40 major market commercial and public television stations.

The FCC had no immediate comment on the report. However, the report itself contained comments by Wallace E. Johnson, chief of the FCC's broadcast bureau, saying the suggested solution could lead to censorship.

"We believe that the procedures adopted by the Federal Communications Commission to enforce our non-discrimination and equal opportunity rules, which have been developed with the broadcast industry in mind, are adequate and, indeed, have been effective," Johnson said.

He said the commission does not "view our role as a 'sweeping mandate to further the national policy against discrimination' nor did we intend to duplicate the roles of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission or other state or local agencies in providing specific remedies for discrimination."

The report blames the networks for the alleged sexual and racial stereotyping in programming since they produce most programs seen on local stations.

Dying ex-Gestapo official escapes from Rome hospital

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Convicted Nazi war criminal Herbert Kappler, apparently stuffed into a large suitcase and dragged to a waiting car by his wife, escaped from a Rome hospital today and reportedly made his way to West Germany, Italian and German officials said.

Italian Defense Minister Vito Lattanzio said in Rome that the 70-year-old, cancer-emaciated Kappler, weighing only 105 pounds, was carried out of the military hospital at about 1 a.m.

The former Gestapo official was serving a life term for the reprisal slaying of 335 Italian civilians in German-occupied Rome and for the past several months had been under treatment for his illness at the hospital on a hill overlooking the Colosseum.

West German government spokesman Armin Gruenewald said here that authorities received a telephone call from Kappler's wife, Anna Marie Kappler-Wenger, who said her husband was in the country. His exact whereabouts were not known, Gruenewald said. Kap-peler's wife lives in Soltau, in the northeastern part of the country.

Kappler had said he wanted to die in Germany, but Italy's highest court ruled last December against setting him free.

The Italian news agency ANSA had reported earlier that it received a telephone call claiming that a West German terrorist organization had kidnapped Kappler and demanding the release of jailed German terrorists.

On learning of his disappearance, Jewish leaders in Rome called for a demonstration at the hospital later today.

The one-time Rome commander of the Gestapo, the Nazi secret police, had been under treatment at Cefio hospital here for the past several months. His lawyer said he was suffering from terminal stomach cancer.

Police gave no details of the disappearance, but the state-owned radio network said it learned that Kappler was visited at the hospital early Sunday by two women.

'Undue' business influence studiedMajor probe spotlights U.C.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A major, and apparently unprecedented, investigation into research by the University of California has been launched by the state auditor general, according to a Los Angeles newspaper.

One of the probe's prime goals is to determine whether UC research is unduly influenced by big business,

Newspaper strike is authorized

LONG BEACH (AP) — Union members employed at the Independent-Press Telegram have unanimously authorized a strike against the city's morning and afternoon newspaper. However, no date for a walkout has been set.

The strike authorization came Sunday night at a meeting of 100 members of the Newspaper Guild — which represents writers, photographers, circulation especially agricultural and pharmaceutical interests, the newspaper said in Sunday's editions.

A main concern is whether agricultural research serves mostly agribusiness corporations which control much of the state's farmland, and whether large drug manufacturing firms influence the outcome of medical research at the university, the paper said.

The audit began with the "hypothesis that large industry does influence the direction of research" in the nine-campus UC system, a source familiar with the probe told the Times.

The university will have to prove otherwise, the source said.

The report said the investigation was requested by five state legislators.

The investigation is also expected to touch on UC landholdings, real estate transactions, royalties and patents; whether UC investments are financially sound, and the use of private UC Foundation moneys.

The one-year probe will include random examination of some of the 700 current UC research projects, audit manager Kurt Sjoberg told the newspaper.

William K. Coblenz, chairman of the UC Board of Regents, indicated little concern over the investigation when interviewed by the newspaper.

State briefsDiver mauled by shark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A skin diver badly bitten by a 10-foot shark off the beach at Pt. Reyes Sunday was evacuated by helicopter to Letterman Army Hospital where he underwent three hours of surgery.

A spokesman reported Glenn Friedman, 20, was diving with friends when a shark grabbed him by the right leg.

Friedman was helped to the beach where a park ranger alerted the Coast Guard. Friedman was flown to the Presidio hospital in a few minutes. During the flight, a medical corpsman worked to stem the bleeding.

At Letterman, surgeons found several "small arteries" in the legs severed, a lanced nerve, and chunks torn from the calf. A hospital spokesman quoted doctors as saying "he might have to undergo a skin graft."

Friedman was sedated and pronounced in stable condition. He will be transferred to another hospital later, the spokesman said.

Pair jailed on murder

BELL (AP) — Sheriff's deputies have booked two men for investigation of murder in the death of a 15-year-old Bell girl.

Booked were Anthony Signorelli, 19, of Bell, and William Connor, 28, of Cudahy. Sheriff's homicide investigators said the two appeared responsible for the death Sunday of Betty Ruth Barajas, but declined to release the cause of death pending further investigation.

Patrolman bumped off

CERRITOS (AP) — An off-duty California Highway Patrolman on a bicycle fired four shots at a small car after the driver allegedly threw beer at him and bumped him off his bicycle.

CHP officer Michael Devine, 24, said the driver of the car rammed his bicycle from the rear after being ordered to stop during the incident Saturday afternoon. Sheriff's deputies arrested four persons at a Cerritos service station where they were reportedly fixing a tire flattened by one of Devine's shots.

Two killed in mishap

SIMI VALLEY (AP) — Two men have died after veering off a narrow dirt road and plunging 500 feet down a Box Canyon embankment in a four-wheel drive vehicle.

Killed in the crash about 1:30 a.m. Saturday were Francisco Maldonado, 28, of Woodland Hills, and Malcolm Klein, 26, of Chatsworth, said the California Highway Patrol. Hospitalized in satisfactory condition was Karen Bauer, 18, of Chatsworth.

New L.A. agency set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This city was to open its 30th and newest agency today.

Headed by Jerome Miller, a $41,900-a-year general manager, the agency is to deal with social, employment, training and housing problems.

Mayor Tom Bradley said the 350-employee Community Development Department will eliminate duplication of services once provided by five separate city agencies.

Crash victim loses arm

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Navy doctors have failed to restore the severed arm of Pfc. Mark Ernest after he lost it in a hit and run accident 75 miles from where he was found bleeding in a car.

A California Highway Patrol spokesman said the 21-year-old Marine's right arm was found at the scene of the accident Saturday night and rushed to the Navy hospital where doctors tried in vain to restore it early Sunday morning.

Ernest, stationed in Yuma, Arizona, was riding in a car driven by another Marine, Sgt. Larry Lesniak, 22, when the vehicle sideswiped a truck about 75 miles east of San Diego, the spokesman said.

Instead of stopping, Lesniak drove 75 miles to San Diego, where the car ran out of gas on a freeway offramp. Ernest was found bleeding but conscious in the car by police.

Lesniak was booked in county jail for investigation of felony drunk driving, officers said. The driver of the truck, Charles Boon, 59, of El Cajon, was not seriously injured in the accident.

Officers said both Marines had been drinking.

By The Associated Press

The drought-stricken forests of the West continued to be hit by fire over the weekend, with the two-week-old Marble-Cone blaze on California's central coast remaining the major undefeated adversary.

Almost 10,000 persons are currently involved in fighting blazes in California, which has had scores of forest fires this summer.

The Marble-Cone blaze now covers about 123,000 acres in the Los Padres National Forest. Part of the blaze is about eight miles from homes in the Carmel Valley. Contingency evacuation plans have been made, but officials say there was no concern that the blaze would spread to the homes.

In western Colorado, the Deep Creek fire in the White River National Forest remained out of control today after charring 3,850 acres. About 400 firefighters battled that blaze. A fire line was set up two-thirds of the way around the Deep Creek blaze.

Two fires in the same forest — the 590 acre Brook Creek fire and the 100-acre Meadow Creek blaze — were still burning today, but were declared under control.

A wind-driven brush fire burned out of control in northeastern Washington, consuming more than 150 acres of brush and grass in the Colville National Forest.

Over 100 firefighters, with support from helicopters and tanker airplanes, battled the fire Sunday night. Additional crews were expected at the fire line today.

In central Oregon, the 1,800 acre Green Buttes fire was brought under control Sunday in the Deschutes National Forest.

The Forest Service used seven miles of fire line, 410 firefighters, 16 tankers and 11 bulldozers to stop the fire.

During the weekend, the 45-acre Skellock fire in the Winema National Forest and the 70-acre Chick Two blaze in the nearby Fremont National Forest were stopped. Both were in central Oregon.

Dozens of smaller fires erupted from lightning during the weekend in Oregon forest lands. The smaller fires were quickly controlled.

Clear skies allowed firefighters to get their first good look over the weekend at The Bear Creek fire that had endangered two villages 195 miles northwest of Anchorage. And there was relatively good news to report.

The Bear Creek fire is about 15,000 acres smaller than previously thought. But it still covers 185,000 acres. An aerial survey showed that the blaze was about six miles from the village of Nikolai, population 120.

Heavy smoke had made it difficult to map the fire and also prevented some supply planes from landing.

Dry weather was expected to prevail over the Bear Creek area through Tuesday.

Small blazes 'flare' out of controlBy The Associated Press

While a 105-mile fire line began to choke the raging Marble-Cone fire on the Central California coast, officials said a chain of smaller blazes flared out of control today in the northwest.

Firefighters in the Klamath National Forest struggled against steep odds, hampered by rugged terrain and billows of smoke that grounded air tankers and delayed air-drops of fire retardant.

On a lofty ridge separating Humboldt and Siskyou counties, 5½ miles of fire line were hacked out as a 9,800-acre fire roared up from the valley below.

Officials said two smaller fires burned together early Sunday into the 9,800-acre fire, now known as the Fong-Hammel blaze. Another 2,500-acre fire churned through brush and fire near the Salmon River.

"We're not at all optimistic about these fires," said Ernest Weinberg, U.S. Forest Service spokesman. "It could take quite a few days to put them out."

At the lightning-sparked Marble-Cone blaze, near picturesque Big Sur, secure fire lines encircled 50 per cent of the fire. "We're holding onto it," said CDF spokesman Dick Marlow.

Fire burned hottest on the eastern flank near Arroyo Seca and in the north in the Ventana Wilderness, fire officials said. About 5,700 firefighters were battling the blaze.

Some spotting occurred Sunday when sparks flew over the lines and ignited 100 acres, but the CDF reported the errant blazes were quickly cleaned up.

Some 122,800 acres in the Los Padres National Forest have been painted black by stubborn flames which have swept through the tinder dry brush for two weeks.

The CDF has alerted nearby Carmel Valley residents of a contingency evacuation plan should the blaze, now about seven to eight miles away from homes, begin to pose a danger.

"It's a long ways from that right now," Marlow said, emphasizing there was no immediate threat. In the last 24 hours, the spread of the blaze has slowed, he said, moving only ¼ mile.

Cites progress in some areas

Carter concedes administration hasn't key to solving problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter credits himself with improving the image of the federal government in the minds of Americans, but he concedes that his administration has yet to prove it can solve the nation's toughest problems.

In a critique of his performance after six months in office, Carter concluded that progress has been made in improving the tone of government.

But the President expressed discouragement over efforts to lower inflation and unemployment. And he admitted that there have been no spectacular achievements in foreign affairs.

In a personal report card, Carter summed up his first months in office this way: "Specifics — too early to say. Tone, trust — pretty good."

Carter had been asked to rate himself as President in an interview with ABC News, conducted in his hometown of Plains, Ga., last Wednesday and broadcast Sunday.

"I think as far as the tone of the government and the attitude of our people toward the government, the marks would be fairly high," the President said. "As far as tangible results in this first six months on economy, they have been somewhat disappointing."

Cigarette tar levels down: FTC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette manufacturers are continuing their competition to attract health-conscious smokers who can't kick the habit, the government's new rating of cigarette tar and nicotine levels shows.

Nearly one-third of the 166 brands of cigarettes tested by the Federal Trade Commission had relatively low levels of tar and nicotine, the elements of cigarettes that the government maintains can cause lung cancer and heart attacks.

The ratings, released Sunday, reconfirmed a general industry trend toward lower tar and nicotine content, according to the FTC, which based its findings on tests of cigarette samples purchased in 50 states. The ratings were the first since November 1976.

In a report to Congress last month, the commission noted that in the past year the lower tar and nicotine cigarettes have been the subject of an intensive promotional effort by cigarette manufacturers.

The FTC, which conducts the tests annually under a mandate from Congress, called for legislation changing cigarette labeling.

Asserting that present health warnings underestimate the hazard, it urged Congress to order more strongly worded labels advising consumers that cigarettes can kill them.

The industry regards all cigarettes having less than 15 milligrams of tar as being in the low range. The latest ratings show 52 of the 166 brands with less than 15 milligrams of tar.

3 hurt in mishap

Three persons were injured when their car struck a concrete bridge abutment on Archibald Avenue south of Chino Avenue, Chino area, late Sunday night.

The driver, Mary N. Murrieta, 42, of San Bernardino, told the highway patrol she possibly had fallen asleep. She and one passenger, Patricia Gutierrez, 25, of San Bernardino, were treated at Chino General Hospital and transferred to San Bernardino County Hospital. A second passenger, Frank Gutierrez, 26, of San Bernardino, was reported in fair condition today in the intensive care unit of the Ontario Community Hospital.

Hans Jablonka, 37, who plays Christ in a scene from the new version of the famous Passion Play in Oberammergau, West Germany, falls for the first time beneath the weight of the Carter noted that there has been no major letup in inflation, and that the unemployment rate has fallen only slightly since he took office.

"We have not had any major breakthroughs in foreign affairs, although we have a very coherent program that we are pursuing," he said. "We are tenacious and determined to improve the situation in Southern Africa, in the Middle East, with the Soviets, on SALT (a strategic arms limitation treaty) and test bans against atomic weapons."

Carter, who campaigned for the presidency as an outsider to Washington, said he is feeling "more and more like an insider" — due to what he called a spirit of cooperation and harmony with both the Democratic and Republican leadership in Congress.

"If all of our programs are adopted, then I think this administration will be a great one," he said, reiterating a point made in an inaugural eve speech.

"But we are going to have a lot of failures and a lot of frustrations, and I think the American people have got to realize that the government can't provide magic answers for difficult questions and problems."

President's wife to leave hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Rosalynn Carter, who will celebrate her 50th birthday Thursday, was operated on today in what her press secretary described as "a routine gynecological procedure." "Mrs. Carter is just fine and will leave the hospital later today," said press officer Mary Hoyt after the dilation and curettage operation.

Mrs. Carter arrived at the operating room in Bethesda Naval Hospital about 8:30 a.m. and returned to the presidential suite at about 7:50 a.m., Mrs. Hoyt said.

"It is anticipated she will be picked up later today by the President and will go directly from the hospital to Camp David for the rest of the week," she said.

The procedure was performed by Dr. Douglas Knab, chief of the obstetrics and gynecological division at the suburban Maryland hospital.

For many years the procedure has been used to treat minor irregularities in the female reproductive tract.

Mrs. Hoyt and White House physician William Lukash accompanied Mrs. Carter to the hospital Sunday night.

No schedule changes are planned for the First Lady, who is preparing for a visit to Canada later this month.

Chip moving to Plains, wife to join him later

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite Chip and Caron Carter's affectionate appearance together at Sunday church services, the President's 27-year-old son is planning to move to Plains, Ga., and leave his wife and baby boy in the White House.

Chip, who resigned his $8,000-a-year job with the Democratic National Committee last week, is planning to leave for Plains in the next few days to work in the Carter peanut business, a White House spokesman says.

"It is expected that Caron and (baby) James will join Chip later," the spokesman said Sunday.

The couple were married in 1973. Their son James Earl Carter IV was born last Feb. 25.

Meanwhile, close friends of Chip said he and his wife have been having problems since last year's campaign.

"I don't think it was a secret to anybody in the family that Chip was unhappy in the marriage," said a former co-worker of the President's son.

On occasion, the outgoing Chip has been seen at Washington parties and in local hangouts without his wife. A vacation trip the couple took to Florida a month ago was seen by friends as a final attempt to reconcile their differences.

"I don't think Chip knows what he wants to do with his life," said one friend, a woman. "He's a real roamer. If he weren't the President's son, he'd probably be bumming around Europe or something."

The friend expressed surprise that Chip was going to Plains because last week he reportedly told friends, "There is nothing for me back in Plains."

There have been reports that the young couple were having marital problems, but Chip and Caron smiled at each other, whispered and held hands at the worship service also attended by the President and Mrs. Carter.

Although the White House has refused to confirm or deny that Chip and Caron, 26, were considering a separation, Caron's father, Ben Griffin, said Saturday that the two were having marital problems.

"I don't think it's reached a point that it's a hopeless situation," Griffin said.

The White House also denied reports that the President had angrily ordered his son to leave the White House after Chip informed him he wanted to separate from Caron.

But a source in the White House who saw Chip after his meeting with his father Wednesday said the President's son looked like "a whupped puppy."

The newspaper said today that special Internal Revenue Service agents are investigating the handling of Lance's banking affairs by officials of the comptroller's office. The IRS would neither confirm nor deny that report, attributed to administration sources.

Specifically, the Times said, the IRS agents are investigating whether Bloom proceeded properly in giving Lance a clean bill of health in a letter to the Senate committee considering his nomination.

The agents also are reviewing how examiners supervised the Georgia banks with which Lance was associated before taking office, the paper said.

An administration official conceded Saturday that Carter was paying a political price for the investigations. "Certainly it's politically difficult for us," said the official, privy to the President's thinking. He declined to be identified.

The boy, Hasan Brown, was unharmed.

The girl, whose name was withheld because of her age, had been a baby sitter for Hasan, police said. They said that on Thursday, she lured him away from a group of children being taken on a day-care field trip by subway.

Police said the girl took the boy to the home of Elizabeth Lindsay of Brooklyn, where he played with his former baby sitter and two friends, aged 13 and 15.

The group saw a television report about the missing boy, prompting the 15-year-old to suggest that he be returned home, police said. But the girl instead called Hasan's home and told a neighbor to meet her at the Fulton Street IRT station at a certain time with the dress and the money.

The boy's family notified police, who went to the station and made the arrest.

The girl was charged with second-degree kidnapping and held for a Family Court appearance. Mrs. Lindsay was charged with unlawful imprisonment and with facilitating the commission of a crime.

Budget chief gets vote of confidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he has confidence in Budget Director Bert Lance but knows Lance will quit if government investigators prove there are any improprieties in his financial dealings.

The President's statement was his first expression of personal confidence in Lance since the Treasury Department, under the authority of the comptroller of the currency, began probing loans Carter's longtime friend obtained when he was a Georgia banker.

Carter made an appointment to see Lance today for their regular weekly meeting. White House Deputy Press Secretary Rex Gramm said they were expected to discuss the President's government reorganization program. Lance is in charge of the program.

It was their first meeting since Aug. 1. Lance has been on vacation at Sea Island, Ga.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell has said the President will refrain from discussing the investigation with Lance because Carter feels Lance should deal directly with the comptroller's office on the matter and not use the President as an intermediary.

Carter spoke in an interview with ABC News that was broadcast Sunday night. He was questioned Wednesday, at the end of a five-day visit to his hometown of Plains, Ga. Since Wednesday, there have been reports that the comptroller has broadened his investigation.

The New York Times said Saturday that investigators for Comptroller John Heimann are searching the records for about 20 additional loans which might have been extended to Mrs. Lance, as well as other family members and business entities.

In a story Sunday, the Times said "a potentially embarrassing agreement" between Lance and Robert Bloom, acting comptroller before Heimann took office, was rescinded the day before Carter nominated Lance to be budget director.

Under the agreement, signed Dec. 2, 1975, Lance pledged to correct a number of serious management deficiencies at his Calhoun First National Bank in Georgia, some of which violated the law, the Times said.

The newspaper said today that special Internal Revenue Service agents are investigating the handling of Lance's banking affairs by officials of the comptroller's office. The IRS would neither confirm nor deny that report, attributed to administration sources.

Specifically, the Times said, the IRS agents are investigating whether Bloom proceeded properly in giving Lance a clean bill of health in a letter to the Senate committee considering his nomination.

The agents also are reviewing how examiners supervised the Georgia banks with which Lance was associated before taking office, the paper said.

An administration official conceded Saturday that Carter was paying a political price for the investigations. "Certainly it's politically difficult for us," said the official, privy to the President's thinking. He declined to be identified.

The boy, Hasan Brown, was unharmed.

The girl, whose name was withheld because of her age, had been a baby sitter for Hasan, police said. They said that on Thursday, she lured him away from a group of children being taken on a day-care field trip by subway.

Police said the girl took the boy to the home of Elizabeth Lindsay of Brooklyn, where he played with his former baby sitter and two friends, aged 13 and 15.

The group saw a television report about the missing boy, prompting the 15-year-old to suggest that he be returned home, police said. But the girl instead called Hasan's home and told a neighbor to meet her at the Fulton Street IRT station at a certain time with the dress and the money.

The boy's family notified police, who went to the station and made the arrest.

The girl was charged with second-degree kidnapping and held for a Family Court appearance. Mrs. Lindsay was charged with unlawful imprisonment and with facilitating the commission of a crime.

INJURED IN CLASH

Policeman is carried by colleagues to an ambulance in London after being injured during clash between right-wing National Front marchers and left-wing demonstrators. Police report that 209 persons were arrested during the clash and that 104, including 46 police, were injured.

Hint IRA retaliation for recent failures

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army is expected to escalate its attacks on British troops in an attempt to compensate for its failure to disrupt Queen Elizabeth's visit to Northern Ireland last week.

"Operation Monarch," the massive security operation during the royal visit, bottled up the guerrillas of the IRA's Provisional wing in the Roman Catholic areas that are their strongholds and forced them to limit their attacks to those areas.

However, the British cannot maintain that kind of round-the-clock pressure for long.

Sympathy for the Provisionals among the Catholics has waned in the last year, but they still maintain a hard core of deep-rooted support. British intelligence sources admit this is all the guerrillas need to continue their hit-and-run war.

"We know that militarily we can't win this war," said one Provisional officer. "But the Brits know they can't win either, so this thing will go on until the Brits finally get exhausted and agree to get out."

"Every Brit soldier that we shoot takes the Brits much closer to the point of exhaustion. Every time we force the army to kick down doors and arrest women and kids, they stir up the people, and we advance."

He conceded that British efforts to improve conditions for the province's Catholic minority after 50 years of discrimination by the Protestant majority has eroded support for the Provisionals.

"It's very subtle and it's quite effective," he said, "but we can live with it."

The IRA's failure to wreck the queen's visit was one of a string of propaganda reverses it has suffered in the past year. At the same time, security forces have been arresting more guerrillas and forcing down the level of violence.

Seventy-nine persons were killed in the first half of this year, less than half the 175 killed in the same period last year.

Renewed concern over skateboarding safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is expressing renewed concern over skateboards, which have been associated with 13 reported deaths since 1973 and some 188,000 injuries last year alone.

Girl, 12, arrested over kidnap-ransom of boy, 5

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have arrested a 12-year-old girl two days after she allegedly abducted a 5-year-old boy and demanded a ransom of a new dress and $17 for a new pair of shoes.

The boy, Hasan Brown, was unharmed.

The girl, whose name was withheld because of her age, had been a baby sitter for Hasan, police said. They said that on Thursday, she lured him away from a group of children being taken on a day-care field trip by subway.

Police said the girl took the boy to the home of Elizabeth Lindsay of Brooklyn, where he played with his former baby sitter and two friends, aged 13 and 15.

Joyce BrothersShould she remarry?

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My wife and I are disturbed and disgusted by her mother's plans to marry a 70-year-old man. I've always considered her a sensible, mature woman. She's been helpful with us in raising our youngsters and is the perfect grandmother. We don't know how to explain to our children her sudden interest in this man. I just can't tell you how hurt I am. — L.V.

DEAR DR. L.V.: I'm at a loss to understand why you should be so hurt. Is it because you dislike the man she's planning to marry and don't feel he's worth of her? Or, do you find it difficult and "disgusting" to think of an older person's having romantic and sexual feelings? If it's the latter, then you're behaving like an adolescent and being quite selfish.

Adolescents often find it difficult to accept the fact that their parents are interested in sex. They often prefer to imagine that the only time their parents had intercourse was when their children were conceived. These childish attitudes are not uncommon in adults who find it difficult to accept sexuality in their mature woman. She's been helpful with us in raising our youngsters and is the perfect grandmother. This not only serves to prevent daughters from fulfilling their potential, but is damaging to sons and may stand in the way of their ability to understand and relate to women.

Some recent research indicated, however, that stereotyping begins almost at their birth. Tufts University psychologists questioned 30 sets of parents within 24 hours after the birth of their first child.

This is a perfect opportunity to help your youngsters toward an understanding that will make their own aging easier. They will reflect your attitudes. If they think their grandmother is going to have a rewarding relationship, they'll be happy for her and view her marriage in a positive light.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: We're expecting our first baby soon. I'm determined that whether it's male or female it will grow up liberated and not beaten down by the prejudice I felt when I was growing up. My parents' attitudes about what little girls should and should not be had a profound and, I believe, damaging effect upon my life. I've talked with my husband about this and he says he understands. Do you think any man can avoid being a chauvinist when the chips are down? — U.B.

DEAR U.B.: Yes, I do. Next to the data of the parents, they listed hospital records and doctor's findings. Doctors found no real differences between the 15 males and the 15 females.

R. C. Browns mark 50th year

Mrs. Virginia Sue Di Maio, Capistrano Beach, was hostess with her daughter, Miss Victoria Di Maio and Miss Di Maio's fiance, Ignacio Ruiz of Mexico at La Fonda in Los Angeles for Mr. and Mrs. Robley C. "Brownie" Brown on their 50th wedding anniversary recently.

Friends in the Los Angeles area came later for the entertainment, the Los Comperos Mariachis. Mrs. Di Maio, sister of Mrs. Brown, was flower girl at their wedding at Trinity Episcopal Cathedral in Phoenix, Ariz., July 28, 1927.

The Browns moved to Southern California in 1929 and to Pomona in 1936 when Mr. Brown set up the steel fabrication and welding shop for Pomona Pump Co.

In 1944 the Browns opened and operated R. C.

Ultramarine Ultramarine is the brilliant blue color used by painters of the Middle Ages. It was made from powdered lapis lazuli that had to be imported into Europe. Hence its name, which means "beyond the sea."

"We're National the sunshine airline. Watch us shine."

"Watch us shine starting September 1 with the best schedule ever flown across the Sunbelt."

"To Houston. We have a brand-new flight at a convenient 10:00 am in addition to our 8:30 am nonstop, our wide-cabin 1:05 pm nonstop, a new 5:15 pm nonstop, and last, but not least, the only wide-cabin nightcoach flight to Houston at 1:00 am."

"To Miami and all of Florida, National Airlines has more flights than any other airline. There's a new thru flight to Tampa/St. Pete at 12:50 pm and a new thru flight to Ft. Lauderdale at 8:35 am."

"To New Orleans. We have the only wide-cabin nonstop flights plus the only daily money-saving nightcoach flight at 1:50 am."

"And watch us shine with an attitude that's as sunny as the places we fly to, as bright as the bold sun on our planes."

"Expect us to add a warm personal touch to everything we do—from an on-time departure, to an on-time arrival, to timely service in between. Depend on us to never forget that the only flight that matters is the one you're on."

"Watch us shine with the people who appreciate a shining performance most—the professional/managerial travelers. You'll find more of them on our planes than on any of our competitors."

*Abe VigodaFish that got away

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Detective Fish is retiring from the police force in September, but he's going to stick around as Citizen Phil Fish.

Abe Vigoda has been alternating between "Barney Miller" and his own ABC series, "Fish." But when the fall season opens he will retire from Barney's detective squad in a two-part show. Vigoda is only 55, but he plays Fish as an older man.

Last June, Vigoda staged a walkout of his own in a dispute with producer Danny Arnold over Arnold's refusal to release him to take a role in the NBC mini series, "79 Park Avenue."

Vigoda threatened to boycott the two ABC shows because he lost the role, but he reported to work on schedule. During time out from the series he did take roles in "The Cheap Detective" and the TV movie "The Comedy Company." He'll also be seen on the "Donny and Marie Show" in the fall.

"Fish" has now returned to Saturday night on ABC — where it will stay during the fall season — after a brief tenure on Thursdays.

"I'm optimist everything will be resolved and productivity will be before us," said Vigoda. "We hope this will never happen again."

Vigoda taped the retirement show for "Barney Miller" his first week back on the job. He then went to work on "Fish," although he may return for as many as three guest appearances on "Barney Miller."

He said, "I have my regrets about leaving 'Barney Miller.' You always miss the old gang. The show had certain elements I liked. But having my own show is great, to see it develop and grow."

Fish is a man who sees a dark cloud in every silver lining. The comedy comes from his reactions to the people and situations around him. He does the best of look of long suffering since Jack Benny.

On "Fish" the foster children he and Bernice (Florence Stanley) have taken in give him plenty of occasion to react. "I like working with the kids. They're wonderful actors," he said.

"I think one of the reasons the character caught on seems to be that there's a slice of everybody in Fish," he said. "He doesn't have the patience any more to deal with people, but he hasn't given up. His attitude is, 'I've seen all this before and I won't get excited about it.' I think a lot of people relate to that."

Apparently a lot of policemen see something of themselves in Fish, too. Vigoda has been made an honorary detective in police departments from Beverly Hills to Philadelphia.

Vigoda said he based Fish on two people he knew, a policeman and an insurance salesman.

"I used to play handball with this policeman," he said. "He was fast on the court but he always complained about his feet. And the salesman had hemorrhoids and every time he'd call on somebody he'd have to go to the bathroom and miss a sale. I developed them into Fish, along with myself. I derive my humor from my mother. I take life seriously, but with a twinkle."

How does he feel about national recognition so late in life? He replied, "When it comes in middle age your capacity to adjust to sudden fame is easier than when it comes as a young man. It's allowed me to develop my craft better."

He said he also likes to think that Fish has a bit of the hero image, too. "I think a lot of young people relate to Fish," he said, "and it's more than just a father image. It's a hero image. Like Tom Mix."

Vigoda said, "In actuality, I'm totally different from Fish. Fish is a pessimist. I'm an optimist. Fish is always alling. I'm an athlete. I jog regularly. I play handball. I can function on a handball court like a 25-year-old."

"The highest compliment I get is when people ask me how I could transfer from Tessio in 'The Godfather' to Fish. How can I do it? From experience. You need a foundation. Some people go right to the top, but they have no foundation. When it's time to go on to something else, they're lost."

Vigoda said he based Fish on two people he knew, a policeman and an insurance salesman.

"I used to play handball with this policeman," he said. "He was fast on the court but he always complained about his feet. And the salesman had hemorrhoids and every time he'd call on somebody he'd have to go to the bathroom and miss a sale. I developed them into Fish, along with myself. I derive my humor from my mother. I take life seriously, but with a twinkle."

How does he feel about national recognition so late in life? He replied, "When it comes in middle age your capacity to adjust to sudden fame is easier than when it comes as a young man. It's allowed me to develop my craft better."

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market was lower early Monday in slow trading amid investor concern that major banks would raise their prime lending rate a quarter point to 7 per cent.

The Federal Reserve Board sparked the interest-rate fears by tightening credit the past several weeks to combat an inflationary surge in the nation's money supply. This has led to a rise in short-term money rates which form the basis for other interest rates.

Against that background, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 1.38 points to 869.72 shortly before noon. The Dow fell 17.58 points last week. Declines led advances, 680 to 407, among the 1,587 issues crossing the tape.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 6,800,000 shares, down from the 8,060,000 traded during the same period Friday.

Institutions, fearful of an economic slowdown later this year, continued to sell blue-chip basic-industry issue.

Bethlehem Steel, which recently cut its dividend payout in half after reporting sharply lower earnings, was the most active NYSE issue, off $\frac{1}{2}$ to 22.

General Motors, which fell 2% points in heavy trading last week, was the fourth most active issue, off $\frac{1}{4}$ to 65 $\frac{1}{4}$. A major analyst has downgraded the industry's prospects. Ford was off $\frac{1}{4}$ and Chrysler $\frac{1}{4}$.

General Mills was the second most active issue, off $\frac{1}{4}$ to 29 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Babcock & Wilcox, a 3% point winner Friday, was the third most active issue, up $\frac{1}{4}$ to 52% after a delayed opening. B&W directors recommended acceptance of J. Ray McDermott's \$55-a-share tender offer.

B&W had been fighting a \$48-a-share bid by United Technologies. McDermott stock was ahead $\frac{1}{4}$. UT was down $\frac{1}{4}$.

Prices were lower in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues. International Banknote was most active issue, off $\frac{1}{4}$ to 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ following an opening block of 450,800 shares at 3. Great Basins Petroleum was second, off $\frac{1}{4}$ to 7 $\frac{1}{4}$. Houston Oil & Minerals was third, unchanged at 39.

Back on the map

NEW SWEDEN, Minn. (AP) — Highway department officials have reentered so New Sweden is going back on the map.

The unincorporated Nicollet County hamlet, population 8, suffered the ignominy of being left off the state's 1979 road map.

But a petition drive, led by Paul Bjorklund, town clerk, led to restoration of acknowledgement of New Sweden's existence.

Door-to-door

City-wide census is planned in Pomona

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

A special census based on door-to-door interviews of the entire city will be conducted beginning next month in Pomona.

The special state census will be the first head count of the city since the national census in 1970 and may answer some important questions about what kind of city Pomona is today and may be tomorrow.

"The community has changed a lot since 1970, but no one can quite get a handle on how it has changed," said Ray Bragg of the city's planning department.

In addition to providing an accurate count of the city's population, the census will also give community leaders significant information about employment and transportation patterns and the need for special services for handicapped and other persons.

The information will be used by the city and school district to plan future services, and will also be useful to developers of all kinds in making prudent business decisions about the Pomona market.

Results of the census, assuming the city's population exceeds the 87,384 counted in 1970, should provide the city additional income from such sources as the gasoline, cigarette and motor vehicle taxes which are distributed to cities based on population.

Officials at Pomona Unified School District will be especially interested in census results as they pertain to the number of handicapped persons in the community and the types of handicaps involved.

Recent court decisions have mandated that school districts actively seek out handicapped persons and provide special educational opportunities for them.

The special census will cost about $55,000 and is being financed with funds received by the city two years ago under the federal Community Development Block Grant program.

A supervisor from the state will direct the census project.

Plans call for the city to hire 160 persons to do the actual canvassing, supervised by 14 crew chiefs. The canvassing personnel will each be paid $2.60 an hour.

Because an accurate census demands that each household and person in the city be counted, much of the work will be performed on weekends.

"We're certainly going to need the cooperation of every resident," said Bragg.

When contacted by the census workers, residents will be asked a series of about 15 questions, four or five of which are standard questions prepared by the state and the remainder prepared by the city with the assistance of the school officials and subject to approval by the Pomona City Council.

The state questions deal simply with number of persons in the household, ages and approximate family income.

City questions are expected to cover such areas as the distance persons travel to their job, in what area they work and what form of transportation they use to get to work.

Residents will also be asked whether they rent or own their own housing, and how long they have resided in the community.

All information about individual households will be confidential.

The census takers will use punch cards to record responses. The cards will then be fed into a computer, which will compile the information so as to prevent any chance that an individual household will be identifiable, said Bragg.

It will take about a month to contact the estimated 30,000 households in the city. Results will not be announced for several weeks following completion of the canvassing.

Canvassing is scheduled to begin on Sept. 26.

Bragg said city officials are looking forward to having accurate census information at their disposal for a change.

"Every 10 years is just not often enough," he said, referring to the national census.

The federal government, said Bragg, beginning in 1980 plans to discard the traditional 10-year census in favor of a census every five years.

Bragg said that persons who have questions about the special state census or want additional information may contact the city's planning division.

As head of Central Valley Fire District

Observing to be chief's primary action

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Observing will be Duane Mellinger's primary action when he takes over the administrative reins Aug. 22 at the Central Valley Fire District.

Mellinger is a 17½-year veteran of the Montclair Fire Department. He was recently appointed fire chief of the county fire district serving the City of Fontana and the unincorporated areas of Bloomington and Muscoy.

Mellinger — tall, lanky and narrow of face — allayed any concerns that he will rush in making brash and abrupt changes. He plans to continue his habit of careful observation and analysis before moving for any change in the routines at Central Valley.

"I'm going to observe in the first couple of months there and open the lines of communication with the fire district personnel and city and county staff," Mellinger said on priorities.

"There's a lot to listening and learning the operation. Then we'll start doing some things."

He anticipates little change in the practical routines of firefighting, and boasted of the Central Valley personnel qualifications and training.

There are some controversies and concerns within the district now mainly because of the lack of communication among the various participating entities. The City of Fontana had tentatively considered forming its own city department and withdrawing from the district.

However, during an informal workshop session of city, county and fire officials recently, it was generally agreed to conduct a feasibility study before proceeding. The study will emphasize exploration of the most economic means of furnishing fire protection to the region.

The study will also give the new fire chief time to examine the possibilities for improvement where necessary. Mellinger will have time to build a track record of administrative performance.

Mellinger began his career in protective services as a San Bernardino County sheriff's deputy in 1949. That start was briefly interrupted by the Korean conflict, but he stayed in law enforcement until 1957 as a resident deputy and lieutenant at the Crestline substation. He then switched to fire service and became battalion chief at the Crest Forest Fire District.

When Mellinger joined the Monte Vista Fire District on New Year's Day 1960, there were eight others in the district. He moved through the ranks from engineer to his present position as assistant chief and right-hand man to Chief Harold Duncan. He has witnessed the name change and city department established; the growth to a medium size department of 45 employees, two stations and 6.2 square miles coverage; and the transition from a rural department serving mainly farmers to an urban agency serving concentrated commercial and industrial areas as well as residents.

The transitions in Montclair will serve as a boost to Mellinger when he takes over the larger and still growing Central Valley Fire District.

"Central Valley is experiencing much of the same things we went through here in the last 15 to 20 years," Mellinger said. "We'll have to work closely with the planning and building departments of the city and county in order to keep track of and ahead of the development."

Communication and coordination are Mellinger's prime targets as the new Central Valley chief. Once those two goals are accomplished "we'll re-evaluate service levels, manpower and equipment throughout the district and make changes where necessary," he said.

"Changes will concentrate on providing the most service and the best cost effectiveness for the protection of life and property in the different communities. We'll consider factors ranging from assessed valuation to division of fiscal responsibility in any considerations for change in service or manpower situations."

Mellinger is optimistic about his new position. He believes no problem or concern can develop that can't be dealt with through communication and sincerity of effort.

The city and citizens of Montclair will hold a farewell party for Mellinger at Dicenso's Restaurant, 1651 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland on Friday from 4 to 7 p.m. Those interested in attending are invited.

Family festival slated in Walnut

Plans are being completed for Walnut's first "Family Festival" to be held Saturday at Suzanne Park.

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a parade sponsored by the Walnut Junior Women's Club which will feature floats, clowns, local bands and drill teams, beauty queens, cheerleaders, entrants from local service organizations, local dignitaries and a surprise grand marshal.

At 11:30 a.m., Mayor Richard Laughter, members of the Walnut City Council, Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., Assemblyman Dave Sterling, R-64th Dist., and representatives from the Los Angeles County Supervisors office will open the festivities with a few opening remarks to dedicate new facilities in the park.

During the day, the Kiwanis Club will sponsor a "Sports Fest," featuring relays, games and contests for all ages. There will be sack races, wheelbarrow races, pony rides, watermelon seed spitting contests, women's walnut shelling contests, tricycle races, egg-throwing contests and much more.

There will be entertainment all day, with singers, dancers, rock bands, magicians, square dancers, a 1950s style rock band, and the Sweet Adelines will perform hourly.

The day will end with a pit-roasted barbecue dinner. The dinner, consisting of beef, baked beans, cole slaw, rolls and butter and ice cream, will be served from 4 to 7 p.m. by members of the Walnut Valley Women's Club. Tickets for dinner are $3 for adults, and $2 for children. They must be purchased in advance through Walnut City Hall or members of local service organizations.

For further information, persons may call Walnut City Hall, 595-7543.

Using almost-two-story toilet

Officials 'flush' in water issue

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Staff Writer

Valley residents flush an estimated 3.3 billion gallons of water down toilets annually.

Each flush uses 5½ to 7 gallons with the average family flushing its toilet 19 times a day. This averages out to 41,000 gallons of water per family per year just to flush the toilet.

Kress Pandzic, a Mt. Baldy resident, and the U.S. Forest Service have joined in an experiment which conceivably could eliminate all toilet flushing, thus saving that huge reservoir of water annually in the parched Southland.

Pandzic recently won Forest Service approval to install a Swedish patented "Toathrone" on his home which nestles on a steep hillside across from Mt. Baldy Lodge. The almost two-story toilet uses no water. At the end of a year's time, it disposes pure topsoil which can be disposed of safely on lawns and gardens.

Makers of the device claim there is no odor, with only circulating air and odor utilized to make it function. In temperatures below 45 degrees, warm air from the house must be pulled into it or a heating unit utilized to keep bacteria from falling into a dormant stage and thus rendering the unit inoperable.

Installation was not without its pitfalls, however. The Los Angeles County health department never did approve of his constructing the unit.

"They were living under old rules and looked at it as an outhouse," he said.

"They told me I could build it, but it had to be separated from the house by at least 30 feet. I told them I didn't want to wade through snow to go to the bathroom."

Bureaucratic hassling went on for several months until Briar Cook of the U.S. Forest Service's equipment development center in San Dimas heard of Pandzic's dilemma.

Cook said he had been attempting for months to win an appropriation for an identical unit but was unsuccessful. Once he heard Pandzic already had purchased one but was unable to install it legally, Cook granted a conditional permit if Pandzic would agree to allow Forest Service environmental experts to monitor it each month. Pandzic agreed, and permits were granted.

Cook said such a unit, if successful, would be ideal for primitive hikers' campsites inaccessible to septic disposal trucks. Also, it could be used in areas of heavier traffic, he said.

IT'S A SQUASH!

Lonnie Van Hook, laboratory supervisor at Pacific State Hospital, Pomona, displays a 68-pound Hungarian squash he raised in the backyard garden of his Claremont home. It measures 60 inches around the long way, from end to end, and 56 inches around the middle. Van Hook took it to the hospital to show his colleagues, one of whom gave him the seeds. It was the only squash on the vine and took two people to harvest. Van Hook is considering entering it in the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona this fall.

15 declare intentions to run for 5 seats

Fifteen persons have already declared their intentions of running for five available city council seats in the Alta Loma-Cucamonga-Etiwanda area on Nov. 8 when residents also vote on whether to incorporate as a city.

Four of the 15 persons who have taken out nomination papers have already filed the papers with the county registrar of voters office.

Prospective candidates for seats on the city council have until Sept. 1 to take out and return nomination papers. The first day for filing was last Thursday.

Those four who have filed their papers are Earl Kunkel, 8990 Citation Court, Alta Loma, a printing foreman; Lee Nelsen, 8952 Citation Court, Alta Loma, a hospital supplies manager; Stephen Bastien, 8953 Citation Court, Alta Loma, a catering manager; and Carl Stark, 8051 Beechwood Drive, Alta Loma, a landscape construction manager.

Three persons who took out nomination papers Friday are Myra

'Spirit of St. Louis' visit at Chino Airport

A replica of Charles A. Lindbergh's famous aircraft, the "Spirit of St. Louis," will visit the Chino Airport on Sept. 10, 11 and 12.

The aircraft is on a nation-wide tour to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Lindbergh's historic flight from New York to Paris in May 1927. It was that solo flight that rocketed Lindbergh from obscurity to world fame. His welcome by the American public upon his return from Paris has yet to be rivaled by any national hero.

The Lindbergh Commemorative Tour is sponsored by the Experimental Aircraft Association Foundation of Milwaukee, Wis. The Foundation owns the largest non-government aviation collection in the world.

Its recreation of July to October of 1927 is a part of its objective in bringing historic aircraft and events to the public. The replica "Spirit" was built and is owned by the Foundation.

Coordinating the arrival of the "Spirit" in Chino, are local members of the Experimental Aircraft Association, the Amoco Oil Co., and business and community leaders of the City of St. Louis who are assisting on the tour.

Donnelly said a story appearing in Saturday's Progress Bulletin was accurate, but did not carry all of the up to date information concerning the district's insurance problems. He said three board members — not meeting together — were involved in rectifying the situation Friday afternoon at the Education Center.

Donnelly said Donald Des Combes had acted as the district's agent in acquiring the emergency temporary liability coverage.

No campaign on energy

President Carter has chided the American public for "not paying attention" to the energy crisis and not heeding his calls for voluntary conservation.

In a recent talk with visiting editors and broadcast news directors at the White House, Carter hinted he might call for stronger steps to save fuel.

"I am concerned that the public has not responded well," he said, "and I think voluntary compliance is probably not adequate at all."

Now the President's concern is justified. Last month oil imports ran 12 per cent over the July, 1976 rate. Energy consumption will set a new record this year. In short, we are a nation of gas guzzlers and will not ease up until a shortage hits or the Arab-led oil cartel skyrockets prices from today's $14 a barrel to, say, $25.

That said, Carter is wrong to put all blame for lack of conservation on us energy junkies. He himself has made only occasional statements on the subject and hasn't waged a sustained campaign.

More important, Carter himself has failed to take some fuel-conservation measures within his power. For example, the single most effective gas-saving step would be to enforce the national 55 mile-an-hour speed limit, and it's not being done.

One doesn't have to drive very far this summer to see hordes of trucks, buses and passenger cars roaring past law-abiding drivers at 60 to 70 miles per hour. Enforcement by states is lackadaisical and ineffective.

The federal government has many financial levers to induce states to enforce the speed limit and to punish those that refuse. All it needs is the will to act, which it seemingly lacks.

Another case in point: The Ford administration tried to get the Interstate Commerce Commission to change its notorious "backhaul" regulations. They require many thousands of trucks to return empty after making deliveries, an idiotic form of fuel squandering.

Carter now has his own man as chairman of the ICC. But if anything is being done to end the backhauling scandal, it is not apparent to the human eye.

One could go on and on, but that isn't necessary to make the point. Sure, a self-indulgent, gas-wasting public still drives one block to the drug store. But a big-talking administration, which apparently lacks the nerve to take on powerful lobbies like the truckers and the states, isn't doing its part either.

Joyce HiflerThink on these things

Do you recall when we had clothing bought for us in a little larger size — so that we could grow into them? Ideas are much the same way. As an article of good clothing doesn't always fit a growing child the first time he wears it, we have to wear an idea for a while before it actually sets right.

We are often guilty of ignoring an idea because it seems too big for us to handle — but the reason people stop growing and begin regressing is because they never reach above their heads. It takes work to step outside a familiar territory and be willing to take on something that we're not quite sure we can handle. The growing pains can be quite exhausting — yet, it is worth every whit of effort put forth, and it remains as a permanent part of us.

Somewhere, sometime, everyone is entitled to win, to smile back at all those disbelievers who predicted he would never amount to anything. And yet, in spite of that happy thought far too many short-circuit that possibility by believing everybody wins but me.

If you can't be your own friend — who can be your friend? The world around us reflects who and what we are within our thoughts. If we think the whole world is a pain, guess who is the biggest one.

There comes a time to put down all this talk about what someone else did to us and know that we caused the problem by our own ignorance — or by choice. The tide will turn when we admit we are the biggest part of our own problem.

Thoughts

Then the Lord God said, "It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him a helper fit for him." — Genesis 1:19.

"The highest happiness on earth is in marriage. Every man who is happily married is a successful man even if he has failed in everything else." — William Lyon Phelps, American educator.

Then Job answered: "I have heard many such things; miserable comforters are you all." — Job 16:1,2.

"In no direction that we turn do we find ease or comfort. If we are honest and if we have the will to win we find only danger, hard work and iron resolution." — Wendell L. Willkie, American statesman.

"General, what's this I've heard about you Americans pulling out?!"

The public forumBrown seeks VFW votes

Dear Editor:

Two years ago the Veterans of Foreign Wars held their 76th national convention in Los Angeles. Gov. Jerry Brown was invited. He not only snubbed them, he refused to accept an American flag that was offered to him.

This year the VFW held its state convention in Sacramento. Gov. Brown decided that since this annual affair was convening close to his pad, he would saunter over there and make amends to our veterans by giving a short patriotic speech and accepting the flag.

He claims there was a misunderstanding of whom the flag was for at our national convention held in Los Angeles. He said he thought it was a personal gift and not a gift for the state. (Imagine putting the American flag in the category of a personal gift.)

Gov. Brown was informed two years ago that the American flag was a gift to the state and not to him, and he still refused to accept it.

I can see only one reason for Gov. Brown attending the VFW convention in Sacramento. He didn't go there to get an American flag. He went there looking for votes in next year's election for governor of California.

Jack Anderson and Les WhittenTito's strange trade proposal

WASHINGTON — The bizarre story can now be told of a subtle attempt by Yugoslavia to trade a jailed American for information from the FBI.

President Tito's secret police, known by the dread initials UDB, had been anxious to exchange information with the FBI. What the UDB really wanted, according to our sources, was access to the FBI's files on the anti-Tito emigres in the United States.

But the FBI had no intention of sharing this information with Tito's police. Then in August, 1975, an opportunity came to apply some quiet pressure on Washington.

The UDB arrested an American businessman, Laszlo Toth, on charges of espionage. He was accused of securing pictures of a Yugoslav sugar refinery, a facility of dubious military significance.

It happened that Toth had been born and raised in Yugoslavia. As a young man, he had worked at the sugar factory. He wanted the pictures strictly for nonpolitical reasons.

Meanwhile, he had moved to the United States where he had become a citizen and had found employment with the Great Western Sugar Company. His 1975 visit was a sentimental journey to his homeland.

Intelligence sources say that the UDB at first offered to release Toth if he would agree to spy against his adopted country. He turned down the deal and was hit with a jolting, seven-year sentence.

This aroused then-Ambassador Laurence Silberman, a former Justice Department hotshot, who reviewed the case and concluded that the Yugoslavs must have known Toth was innocent. Silberman deduced, therefore, that they had some other reason than suspected espionage for holding Toth.

Silberman began badgering the Yugoslav foreign ministry with demands for Toth's release. When the diplomat gave him the brush-off, he went directly to the most feared official in Yugoslavia, Interior Minister Franjo Herljevic, who heads the secret police.

Herljevic is skilled in the devious arts. With Balkan subtlety, he spoke to Silberman first about Yugoslav emigres in the United States. Then Herljevic glided smoothly into the question of Yugoslavia's longstanding desire for liaison with the FBI.

Silberman began making a case for Toth's immediate release. But Herljevic dismissed the formal arguments. Among friends, he said carefully, anything could be worked out.

The brilliant, if brash, Silberman quickly grasped the message between the words. He suggested in dispatches to Washington that Herljevic was offering a quid pro quo. If the United States would agree to the FBI-UDB exchange program, the Ambassador noted, Toth could be quickly cut loose.

But Silberman didn't like the deal, which he considered to be extortionate. He took his complaint straight to the Yugoslav foreign office. The State Department bureaucracy, however, wouldn't back up its ambassador. To them, Yugoslavia was a friendly nation.

Toth continued to languish in his Balkan jail, therefore, for months. In the end, Silberman went out of channels to liberate the American businessman. He learned that then-Treasury Secretary William Simon, a tough operator, was preparing to visit Yugoslavia. held the keys to more trade and more dollars. But at Silberman's instigation, Simon threatened to cancel the trip as long as Toth remained in prison.

This produced a sudden "pardon" for Toth from Tito himself. There remained only the repercussions. The record shows that the State Department bureaucrats accused Silberman of "being too zealous." He struck back with a denunciation of the department's obstructionists. Toth had been "innocent as the driven snow," Silberman declared.

There was an additional round of two of recriminations, and the matter ended with Silberman's departure from Belgrade as part of the post-election Republican exodus. The story was locked up, meanwhile, in the State Department's most secret files.

Footnote: We questioned Silberman who confirmed the general outline of the Herljevic episodes. Toth, aside from saying he was grateful to both Silberman and the United States, declined comment.

WATCH ON WASTE — Last March, we reported that the Capitol Hill elite claimed to be exempt from President Carter's crackdown on oversize limousines. Shortly thereafter, Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill gave up his comfortable Cadillac for a Mercury. More modest cars were ordered for Democratic leader James Wright and Republican leader John Rhodes. On the Senate side, eight new Marquis were ordered to replace four Cadillacs and four Lincolns. House Sergeant-at-Arms Kenneth Harding, while settling for a Marquis, ordered one with a flashy moon roof at an extra cost to the taxpayers of $50. "But," he assured our reporter Vance Hawthorne, "I buy my own gas and oil."

In WashingtonLast of the 'fat cats'

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sworn testimony in a recently resolved court case provides new evidence of organized labor's audacity in circumventing the law designed to eliminate the influence of large contributions in campaigns for federal office.

The civil suit, filed by the Republican National Committee in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va., alleged that the Communications Workers of America (CWA) abused its privilege to mail political literature at the Postal Service's low-cost "bulk rate."

An out-of-court agreement settled the dispute before a trial had been scheduled, but pre-trial depositions produced some unusually candid testimony from Mikel K. Miller, chief political operative for the

CWA, whose members include more than 500,000 telephone company employees.

Questioned under oath, Miller acknowledged that during last autumn's presidential campaign he had "in the neighborhood of maybe a dozen" telephone conversations with Landon Butler, political director of Jimmy Carter's campaign organization.

"The bulk of the conversations," said Miller, "dealt with the kinds of activities that we were doing and communicating with our members on behalf of the presidential campaign in terms of, you know, the material we were sending out, the kinds of material we were planning to send out."

He also described what occurred "when we decided in late September, early October, to produce a brochure and produce a letter from CWA President Glenn E. Watts to all active and retired union members, urging them to vote for Carter."

"To get an accurate reflection of Carter's position," explained Miller, the union relied on a letter the candidate had sent to Watts and on "transcriptions of two conversations of two speeches, if you want to put it that way, from Jimmy Carter to the CWA at our conventions in '75 and '76 . . . We excerpted heavily from those two speeches or conversations."

The Federal Election Commission in implementing campaign finance reform legislation of recent years, has allowed labor unions to spend unlimited funds "to make partisan communications in connection with federal elections to members and their families."

But the commission's rigid rules require that "the material constitutes a communication of the view of . . . the labor organization" and cannot be "simply the republication or reproduction . . . of any broadcast transcript or tape, or any written, graphic or other form of camaign materials prepared by the candidate" or campaign committee.

Despite that restriction, the Republican lawsuit turned up one case where CWA local 9999 in the Washington suburbs mailed out 1,500 copies of a Carter leaflet specifically identified as having been paid for by the local Democratic organization.

In other cases, Miller's testimony makes clear that although the CWA did not technically violate the federal regulations, its extensive promotion of Carter's candidacy was the product of close coordination with the official campaign organization, not a truly independent expression of support.

That assistance was crucial because, with the exception of unions communicating with their members and corporations communicating with their employees and stockholders, no individuals or organizations were allowed to contribute anything to assist the two major party presidential candidates. (All of their funds came from the federal treasury.)

The CWA found a loophole in that law and spent more than $100,000 — including $67,527 for letters from Watts to all members and $25,439 worth of free advertising in the union's monthly newspaper — in a questionable political operation which made the union little more than an extension of the Carter campaign organization.

Scores of other unions operated with similar impunity, making them the last of the "fat cats" in an era when large political contributions have been widely recognized as a corrupting, unhealthy influence on

Doc PeirsonJust in jest

It all started, I suppose, with the jumping frog of Calaveras County. That celebrated contest proved so popular it is no wonder the next big attractions were jumping bean contests and snail races. And each year we Americans never fail to invent some new form of outlandish competition on which we can wager huge sums of money and often lose our shirts. — This year the big event was an International Chicken Flying Meet held in Ohio.

Naturally we have to rule out non-stop teeter-tottering and ping pong ball mouth stuffing in arriving at that decision. Those events are for the college-level groups and are not to be confused with professional contests such as chicken flying or the first runner-up in importance, the International Bellyflop Contest.

Kolodge, Rogers move up to JCs

Apparently the place to be if you're an up-and-coming young baseball coach is at a Southland junior college.

Two very prominent local diamond coaches recently made the switch from the prep scene to the junior college ranks. Oddly enough, both went from a head coaching job at the high school level to an assistant's duties at the JCs.

Damien's Matt Kolodge, who had guided the Spartan baseball fortunes for the past eight years in a most successful fashion, has accepted an assistant coaching role at Citrus under Owl head mentor Skip Claproad.

And Dennis Rogers, who coached Citrus Belt League entry San Gorgonio to the CIF 4A title this past spring, has decided to accept a similar job at Orange Coast JC under Mike Mayne. Rogers is one of many, many former Cal Poly Pomona players now making their mark in the coaching ranks.

It might seem a bit strange at first glance as to why anyone would give up a head coaching slot to move on to an assistant's duties, but Kolodge explains his reasoning, which also happens to be the thinking of most high school coaches this writer has talked to.

"I've always wanted to get a start at the college level," Kolodge said, "especially in this area. I want to try to go as high as I can as a coach, and the Citrus job is a step in the right direction."

Kolodge posted a 128-68-3 record in his eight years at Damien. His clubs twice won the San Antonio League title (1974 and 1975) and were involved in the CIF playoffs in five of the eight seasons. The Spartans just missed a playoff bid on a couple other occasions.

A difficult decision

"It was a very hard decision to leave Damien," Kolodge admits. "It's sad to leave a school after eight happy years, and doubly so since I went to high school there myself."

"I'll miss my friends at Damien, and I'll miss the SAL. That league always had good teams and good coaches. It was fun."

However, Kolodge is already looking forward to his new job at Citrus, which will start right up this fall as the Owls (like most area JCs) run a year-around baseball program.

"Skip runs a great program, when he offered me the job it was something I just couldn't turn down," the veteran Damien skipper said. "Not to take anything away from high school coaching or coaches, but baseball at the JC level is a whole different world."

"It's much more challenging in that it is a year-around job, and you are involved in all phases of baseball. The big thing is that you are involved with kids who WANT to be there. Believe me, that's a big difference right there."

Kolodge also notes something that professional baseball scouts have known for a long time: The Southern California junior colleges play some of the best baseball in the nation, at any level.

Talent outstanding

"The talent is just outstanding at the JC level," Kolodge said. "That plus the competition is excellent. It will be a learning experience for me to work in that kind of involvement, but I'm looking forward to this fall already."

San Gorgonio's Rogers, a former star infielder for John Scolinos at Polk, took over coaching duties at San Gogo this past spring and promptly guided that school to the 4A crown.

Orange Coach head coach Mayne also lured Rogers' assistant, Howard Ashlock, away from San Gogo. Ashlock, like Rogers, is a former Cal Poly Bronco.

"These two young coaches are going to be a great addition to our staff," Pirate skipper Mayne indicated.

OCC posted a 22-13-1 mark last year and was a second-place finisher in the rugged South Coast Conference. Ashlock replaces Bill Kernen on the OCC staff. Kernen resigned his position to accept an assistant's job at Cal State Fullerton recently.

Damien is currently searching for a new baseball coach. Spartan athletic director Tom Carroll is expected to announce the school's choice prior to the start of the fall term on August 29.

A.L. shatters attendance mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Bolstered by the addition of franchises in Seattle and Toronto, the American League has already set an all-time attendance record, it was announced Monday.

Weekend attendances of more than 556,000 fans pushed the league's total for the 14,678,375, surpassing the record of 14,657,802 set all of last year. Seven weeks remain in the current season.

Wadkins pulls off comeback

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins feels like both hero and villain.

Wadkins, a seven-year pro who has never reached the level of greatness predicted for him, won the 59th PGA National Championship Sunday with a victory over Gene Little on the third hole of the sudden death playoff.

"I feel like a villain in a lot of ways," said the 27-year-old Wadkins in pulling off the biggest comeback of the tour this year when he made up six strokes in the final round. "They just don't come any finer than Gene. He's everybody's Mr. Nice Guy."

"At this point in his career, it would have meant a lot. I've had a rough three years, but Gene has been through worse than me."

The 47-year-old Little, leader from the beginning, had a five-stroke lead going into the final nine holes but bogeyed five of the first six and then had pars on the last three to drop into a tie with Wadkins, who birdied No. 18 to finish his round at six-under 232.

"I made a lot of bad decisions both starting out and coming in," said Little, whose nickname is "the Machine" for his near-perfect swing. "I misclubbed at least a half dozen times."

"I made several bad decisions and they turned out wrong. I made bad shots and they went wrong. That's how you get bogeys."

While Wadkins waited on the 18th green, Little and Jack Nicklaus, playing one threesome apart, were locked into a duel which many thought would produce the winner on the sunlit, 6,806-yard, par-72 Pebble Beach Golf Links.

Little, winner in Houston by three strokes over Wadkins, made the turn for home at 10 strokes under par, taking bogeys at Nos. 3 and 5 but making birdies on 4, 6 and 7. Nicklaus and Wadkins made the turn at six under.

Little then bogeyed No. 10, parred No. 11 and bogeyed Nos. 12 through 15.

"The three-putt on 12 started off," said Little. "And then I bogeyed 14, which really took the edge off."

While this was taking place, Nicklaus parred No. 10 through 16 before catching a bad break on No. 17 when his tee shot on the 209-yard, par-three hole caught the crown of the green and kicked right. He bogeyed the hole to go five under.

"Gene wanted to give it to me," said Nicklaus, "but I couldn't take it."

Meanwhile, Wadkins followed the 45 minutes of drama from the 18th green.

"I really thought I had a chance when Jack made the bogey on 17," he said. "I thought that if Gene bogeyed 17 and then had a par on 18 I would win it outright."

Little, however, parred the final three holes to set up the first sudden-death playoff ever in a major tournament.

On the first extra hole, a 382-yard, par four, Wadkins said he used the wrong club and missed the green. He saved par with a 20-foot putt, while Little had a tap-in for his par.

Both birdied the 502-yard, par-five second hole, each missing an eagle putt with balls rimming the cup.

On the 388-yard, par-four third, Little hit his second shot short and to the left while Wadkins went over the green. Little then chipped out of the grass badly and missed the 20-foot putt to the right.

Wadkins chipped to within five feet, sank the putt and leaped with joy.

To Wadkins, the victory meant many things in addition to the $45,000 first prize. He becomes a member of the Ryder Cup and World Cup teams and is exempt from qualifying on the tour for the next 10 years and for the PGA Championship for a lifetime.

"A lot of things have happened to me, both good and bad, over the past three years," said Wadkins who won three tournaments before undergoing surgery for removal of his gall bladder and appendix in December, 1974. "I view the last three years as a learning period. I guess there have been questions. You work and work and have nothing to show for it."

"But this has been a great year," said Wadkins, who earned $93,919 going into the PGA Championship, "and it was capped today."

Dodgers getting great pitching

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda has been saying since spring that he wouldn't trade his pitching staff for any other in baseball.

"We have the best five starters you can have," said the Dodgers' chief optimist.

Over the last nine games, the last two of which have been shutouts, Lasorda's words have been more

La Verne youth wins BB contest

LOS ANGELES — Keith Watkins of La Verne was a first-place finisher Sunday in the finals of the Dodger Pepsi Baseball Skills Contest at Dodger Stadium.

Watkins won the baserunning event in the 11-12 age group. The La Verne youth was one of 110,000 entries in the contest, and had advanced through regional competition to Sunday's finals.

than borne out. Doug Rau hurled a four-hit, 1-0 shutout over the Atlanta Braves Sunday, after Tommy John had blanked the same club the night before 11-0.

The Dodgers' staff earned run average is now 3.28, best in the major leagues.

"On a team that's as far ahead as we are, everytime you go out there you want to pitch as well or better as the man in front of you," said Rau, Rau gave up a one-out single to Rod Gilbreath an inning later, then retired 12 in a row before Jerry Royster singled with two out in the ninth.

Niekro became the 55th pitcher in baseball history to pitch 3,000 or more innings when he worked the first inning Sunday. But it wasn't easy.

After getting the first two outs, he hit Dusty Baker and Smith, then gave up an infield single to Steve Garvey that loaded the bases. But he struck out Rick Monday to get out of the inning.

Rau lowered his earned run average to 3.41 with his second shutout of the season and the ninth registered by the Dodgers' staff.

"I must have started 20 games in my career with a stiff neck," said Rau. "I've never done too well until today."

The Dodger lefthander retired the first eight Braves in order, then gave up a double to Niekro for the first hit. Besides Niekro, the only other Brave past first base was Willie Montanez, who doubled with one out in the fourth.

Sulkies return

Harness racing returns to Hollywood Park Thursday night, but will provide a new twist for its fans this season.

Western Harness Racing will introduce a totalizator board that will flash actual payoffs for $2 win tickets on each horse before every race. Previously, the board had shown only the odds and amounts bet.

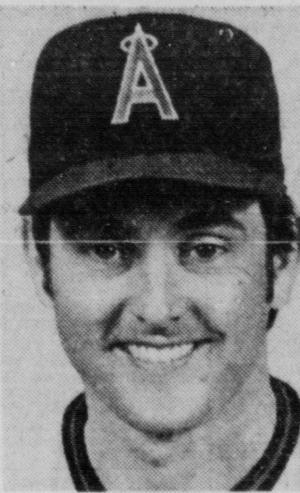

Every 30 seconds, the infield tote board will flash current payoffs in dollars and cents amounts, based on the betting action prior to each race.

The Holloly park harness season is scheduled to run Tuesday through Saturday through Dec. 5, covering a period of 79 racing dates.

PIECE OF THE PAST

ROD KRAMER

New cancer info service helping

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The woman's daughter was dying of cancer, but she had read about a doctor in Europe with a 'miracle cure.' Now Rod Kramer had to talk the anguished woman out of selling her home and taking her incurably ill daughter on what he knew would be a bitterly disappointing quest.

"Unfortunately, to try to comfort her, her friends had told her not to listen to doctors and that they had heard of 'cures,'" he recalls. "Finally, we were able to determine that the doctor in question was doing research but had not found a cure. We convinced her of that and helped her find medical attention in the United States."

The call was one of 50 or more that Kramer and other volunteers at the Cancer Information Service here handle every day. The 10-month-old 'hotline' service is part of the Los Angeles County University of Southern California Comprehensive Cancer Center and has counseled more than 7,000 persons so far.

This year, more than 23,000 Los Angeles residents will learn they have cancer. One-third eventually will be cured, but experts say the recovery rate could be almost twice as high if public misconceptions and fears about cancer could be overcome.

"A large percentage of our calls involve articles that have appeared in national tabloids about new 'cures' for cancer," Kramer said in an interview. "After reading these articles, they think there are some doctors who are on the verge of curing cancer and if they could only get in touch with them, they'd be all right."

People are so terrified of cancer that many callers who have it will pretend to be phoning for someone else, says Kramer, who supervises the hotline operation. Many will argue over the diagnosis and ask if "their friend" shouldn't try one of various unproven 'cures.' Other and even more poignant questions have come from patients who think their cancer is contagious or that God is punishing them for some sin.

Handling such calls requires a particular sensitivity — something the 27-year-old Kramer acquired when his mother died of cancer two years ago.

"Basically, you have to acknowledge the person's concern, but what's most important is that they get accurate information," he says. "I try to think of what's best for the person calling and for the person they're calling about and then get them to realistically face the situation."

Kramer stresses that many types of cancer can be cured if they are detected early and treatment is begun promptly. The toll-free number of the Cancer Information Service, the first of its kind in California, is 1-800-252-9066. The service will provide callers with free information, including the early warning signs of cancer and types of treatment available.

IT TOOK TEN YEARS TO DEVELOP A "TOTAL SYSTEM" THAT DELIVERS REAL TASTE IN A LOW 'TAR' CIGARETTE.

A low 'tar' cigarette is a complex system of interacting parts.

The tobacco. The filter. And even the paper.

Decade is the first low 'tar' in which all the parts have been arranged in perfect balance with each other. This is the Decade "Total System." And this is why Decade is the first low 'tar' with a taste worth smoking.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing" plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

We've developed a system called "Flavor Packing" that allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

This is in addition to our special taste blend of fifteen fine tobaccos, including exotic Turkish, full bodied Burley, and Bright, a tobacco known for its smoothness.

The Filter. Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

The Decade filter is a combination of modern laser technology, plus our own exclusive research design. Simply, we've created a channel within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes. Which means you get taste from first puff to last.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

For Decade we use only high porosity cigarette paper. Ordinary paper inhibits the burn rate, which can diminish the taste and create the need to pull harder when you drag.

With Decade's high porosity paper however, you get an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result. A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack of Decade for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And after one taste we think you'll agree that our last 10 years were well worth the effort.

Regular and Menthol.
